

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A filter is press-inserted into a mounting bore of an injector. The filter has an inlet section at an opening-end fuel inlet side and a filter section which has a number of holes. The bottom of the filter section is hemispherically-shaped so that a flow area formed between the outer surface of the hemispherical bottom portion and the inner round surface of the mounting inlet bore widens gradually to reduce pressure loss effectively.